A wedding of interest to many friends took place at Vancouver, B. C., when Lillian Hislop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hislop, Arcola, became the bride of Clayton Brittain, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Brittain, Dauphin, Man.

The bride chose a pale blue sheer street-length dress with gold sequins and matching gold accessories, with corsage of roses. She wore a gold necklace set with pearls, gift of the groom.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Manley Brittain, and Manley Brittain, brother of the groom, was best man. Dr. McCall performed the ceremony in the chapel of St. Andrew's United Church, on Saturday, January 27th.

A buffet lunch and reception was held at the home of Miss Margaret Strachen, cousin of the bride.

Smut in Oats and Barley

In our last article, we commented on the alarming and unnecessary increase in bunt (stinking smut) of wheat. In oats and barley, smut disease also causes enormous losses which, for the most part, are avoidable.

In the Prairie Provinces, barley is subject to three different smuts, and oats to two. Formalin and organic mercury dusts may be used to control all except the true loose smut of barley which responds only to the hot water treatment.

Complete elimination of smut by means of seed treatment is often difficult or even impossible. There is evidence that formalin is often more effective than are the mercurial dusts, particularly when smut infestations are severe. But it is important to remember that this advantage may be more than offset by damage to the seed by the use of formalin. "Formalin should not be used on weak seed or when a rapid growth is required to offset wireworm damage, disease, weeds and soil drifting." (Guide to Farm Practice in Saskatchewan, 1942). Also, if the seed is cracked or damaged, the use of formalin should be avoided, and it should never be used for hullless oats.

When mercurial dusts are used, it is very important to secure a uniform distribution of dust, and this depends largely on the efficiency of the treating machine, and of the operator. "If the efficiency of the machines used for this purpose could be increased, it would be a much needed advance." (Proceedings Manitoba Agronomists' Conference, 1944).

WARMLEY

February 1.—Quite a serious accident occurred when Joe Demyen, Jr., driving his father's car and Norman Gordon in his truck met head on just south of the sand hill. Both cars were badly damaged but luckily no one was badly hurt.

A meeting was called in Warmley school Monday night to organize a branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, but only six (6) people turned out so we suppose no one wants a branch here.

Joe Driscoll is collecting for a Memorial Hospital which is to be built in Kipling if enough funds can be collected by June.

Mr. E. Kirkvold went to Regina on Saturday.

Windsor Station (upper) headquarters of the Canadian Pacific Railway's wide flung travel system.

Day by day, travellers by the score and citizens of Montreal watch the progress of the war on huge wall maps in the Concourse of Windsor Station (upper right).

A few of the 2,500 employees of the C.P.R. whose offices are contained in Windsor Station are shown (lower).

HISTORIC Windsor Station in Montreal, nerve centre of the vast Canadian Pacific Railway system, is much more these wartime days than merely a place to get on or get off trains. Under the impetus of war and in keeping with C.P.R. traditions of service, many new features for the use of the general public have been added.

Not the least can be viewed in the flag-bedecked Concourse, where four huge wall maps have been installed depicting the Pacific Theatre, the Italian Front, the fighting in France and the Russian Front. Each day brightly colored thumbtacks are re-arranged to show the very latest gains as announced by the army headquarters in each theatre of war. Not only the travelling public, but many hundreds of Montrealers take advantage of this service by means of which they can secure a vivid, up-to-the-minute picture of all the world's battlefronts. The Concourse itself is decorated with all the flags of the United Nations, each one named.

Over 2,500 officers and employees of the C.P.R. are stationed in Windsor Station, which first opened its doors in 1889. Each day between six and eight thousand telephone calls are made over the company's switchboard there, as well as many long distance business calls over the company's own wires which stretch from Halifax to Vancouver.

Kings and queens, lords and ladies, diplomats, dowagers, immigrants seeking a new life of freedom, young servicemen starting for the far corners of the earth—all these have passed through Windsor Station's lofty portals not only during this war, but in the days of other wars and the years of peace between. Windsor Station is a worthy monument to the world's greatest travel system and the country it so faithfully serves.
